Valkyrie's crew was busy to a man on her hull and aloft, and to the landlubber there would seem little possibility the sanguine hopes of her handlers to have her in sailing trim by Monday next being fulfilled. Every inch of paint had been scraped off, from keel to the plankshear, and a large number of hebusy sallormen were putting on sand-paper and elbow-grease in enormous quantities, preparatory to repainting. The topsides will be painted white, departing from the long-established cus-

On the bottom, which will not be coppered, except that portion which is now covered with sheathing, will be applied another coating of the peculiar prepara-tion that was put on before she crossed the Atlantic. Regarding its nature, Mr. Arthur Glennie, Lord Dunraven's English representative, refused politely to divulge anything, saying merely that it was made especially for Valkyrie and her bottom was the first to be so treated.

Mr. Glennie is no dude yachtsman. He was one of the busiest men on Val-kyrie's deck when "The Evening World" reporter approached him. His hands were grimed and his clothing was little different from that of the mate, who was directing the rigging gang of the crew. He is a hearty, outspoken English yachtsman, with cheery manners, and speaks his mind as though it were backed up by every sentiment of his emotions.

"Will we be ready to sail on Monday?" he said, echoing the reporter's query. This has probably given rise to the rumor that the Engines boat had her bow frames buckled; but the truth of the matter is that the mechanics were simply removing the braces that had

Justice Tighe, in the Adams Street Police Court, Brooklyn, this afternoon threw a bombshell into the ranks of the Police Department by holding Policeman Thomas J. Donovan, of the Clymer street station, to await the action of the Grand Jury, on a charge of attempting to induce persons to commit a Justice Tighe's surprising action was the outcome of the examination of Charles Brown and Tony Jenkins, charged with selling pools on the races. Donovan swore that on Aug. 3 he called at the alleged pool-room, Atlantic avenue and Manhattan Crossing, and bet $2 on Charade to win a race at the Brighton Beach Race Track. He said he bald money to Jenkins, and upon learning his horse had won collected his winnings from Brown.

"Did you know at the time that you were trying to induce these men commit a crime?" Justice Tighe asked "Yes, sir," the officer replied. The prisoners waived further examin-
